Dr. Janet Dewart Bell is a communications strategist and management consultant with a multimedia background, as well as experience in policy advocacy, strategic planning, fund development, media training, and education. She is a social justice advocate, activist, executive coach, and motivational speaker, with a doctorate in Leadership and Change from Antioch University. She is the author of Carving Out a Humanity: Race, Rights, and Redemption and Lighting the Fires of Freedom: African American Women in the Civil Rights Movement. As a Visiting Research Professor at the University of Pittsburgh, she developed and taught a course on Effective Advocacy and co-taught a constitutional law course with her husband Professor Derrick Bell. Bell established the Derrick Bell Lecture Series on Race in American Society at the New York University School of Law, now in its twenty-sixth year. Along with other lead donors, she helped establish in 2012 the Derrick Bell Fund for Excellence at the University of Pittsburgh School of Law, Professor Bell’s alma mater, to honor his memory and legacy.

Kendall Thomas is the Nash Professor of Law and the Director of the Studio for Law and Culture at Columbia University, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1984. His teaching and research interests are in the areas of U.S. constitutional law, human rights, law and culture, sexuality and law, and critical race theory. Thomas was a co-editor, with Kimberlé Williams Crenshaw, Neil Gotanda and Gary Peller of Critical Race Theory: Key Writings that Founded the Movement (New Press, 1995). Thomas has taught or lectured at universities around the world. An activist, Thomas was a founding member of the Majority Action Caucus of the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power (ACT UP), a vice-chair and board member of Gay Men’s Health Crisis, a board member of the New York City AIDS Memorial and a co-founder of Amend the 13th, an educational campaign about the Thirteenth Amendment and compulsory prison labor.

Dr. Janet Dewart Bell and Kendall Thomas discuss the intersection of race and law in the United States and the role that the law has played in shaping our society.
